Colorado is a Leader in Nanotechnology

Nanotechnology is our future pipeline of all science and technology. It has the potential to create economic growth in every geographical area of the state and among almost every industry sector. Nanotechnology as an economic driver is no 'small matter'.

Over the next 10 to 20 years, it is anticipated that nanotechnologies will change almost every product on the market today, resulting in an estimated $2.6 trillion global market and the creation of more than 7 million high waged U.S. jobs by 2015. As an enabling, cross-cutting technology, nanotechnology is essential to the future growth of all of Colorado's technology industry sectors and our future workforce.
